

Senior Lecturer Zhuk I. Yu.	The discipline "European standard of computer literacy" belongs to the block of professionally-oriented disciplines of the curriculum of the specialty "Medicine". The purpose of studying this discipline is to acquire the necessary knowledge and practical skills of students, namely: to demonstrate the skills of using a personal computer to solve typical problems of professional activity and personal needs: skills needed to work on a personal computer; independently choose and use the software necessary for the decision of typical problems of professional activity and personal needs; interpret the basic concepts, principles and methods of modern information technology for obtaining and processing information; master the main types of information resources; demonstrate skills in using local and global computer networks to solve professional problems. According to the results of the discipline, students should be aware of the possibilities of Microsoft Excel spreadsheets during graphical data processing; about the capabilities of the MS Access database when creating databases and working with them; about the features of data processing using Microsoft PowerPoint; about the World Wide Web's ability to view Web documents.	ESCL-2
------------------------------------	---	---------------